Searching

You can obviously read this pdf document as normal, but if you are doing family research it is best to use the pdf search functionality.

When you opened this document, it will have either opened in a dedicated pdf client like Adobe Reader, or in your browser's integrated pdf reader. Sometimes you will see a search option at the top, bottom or in a panel on one side of your screen. Failing that you can always open the search box by keying Ctrl + F.

Remember that spelling of names could be quite variable, so you may want to also search on part of a name. For example: wil will find Wilson and Willson.

Money

The British Pound symbol: £, modern code GBP

Since 15th February 1971 the pound has been divided into 100 pence. It is the world's oldest currency that is still in use.

In the Anglo-Saxon period, the pound was equivalent to 240 silver pennies which was one pound in weight, however the pound weight then was different, and there was no consistent unit of silver quality until Henry II introduced Sterling silver which is 92.5% pure. In the Tudor period silver coinage was drastically debased down to only 33.3% silver.

The accounting system of 4 farthings = 1 penny (d), 12d = 1 shilling (s), 20s = 1 pound (£), was adopted from that introduced by Charlemagne to the Frankish Empire.

This system of coinage lasted until 31 December 1960 when the farthing ceased to be legal tender, then in 1971 the currency was decimalised.

In these documents, the currency format is £-s-d for pounds, shillings & pence.

1 Farthings is shown as  $\frac{1}{4}$ d, 2 farthings or halfpenny as  $\frac{1}{2}$ d and 3 farthings as  $\frac{3}{4}$ d.
